Dear colleagues,

Interventional radiology is a profession that focuses on diagnostic and therapeutic procedures on the vascular, hepatobiliary, urogenital and locomotor system. The growing technological progress in interventional radiology covers the need for a significant multidisciplinary cooperation which represents a great challenge for radiological technologists and nurses. The scope and level of difficulty of work demands good cooperation, imposes challenges in the use of modern technologies and appropriate staff education. This is an opportunity to speak for the first time in Croatia about the role of radiological technologists and nurses/technicians in IR teams, current issues, cooperation with other departments as well as about other issues.
